

Junior League Holiday House Tour 2013

The 2013 Junior League Holiday House Tour was an incredible experience. I had the privilege of decorating the bedrooms belonging to a hockey-loving teenage boy and a very glamorous teenage girl. This century home belongs to a family with exquisite taste and I started with an amazing blank canvas. The home had been lovingly restored by the family and the only necessary changes involved adding the holiday decor. I used the boy's existing fireplace and impressive collections as a starting point. I used rustic elements, such as a 'snow' covered tree to add the feeling of the holidays. Touches of red were used as an accent to the main blue colour, making the room feel festive, but still masculine. The girls' bedroom was given a makeover with a new black and white paint treatment, as well as some bold hardware on her existing antique furniture. To add warmth, I added touches of mercury glass and warm silver holiday decor. The black daybed was added along with a mass of accent cushions to make the room feel luxurious. The show-stopping pieces in this room were the artwork above the bed and the beautiful vanity, a necessity for any teenage girl. My homeowners loved these rooms almost as much as I loved decorating them.
